INDIANA.

A Little Child Drinks Half a Pint of Whisky and Death Results.

Sp __ to the Indianapolis Journal. SEYMOUR, June 80.-Otto Krause, aged two years and a half, was fatally poisoned by drinking whisky to-day. The child was the son of William H. Krause, a prominent business man of this city, who left yesterday morning on a visit to relatives in Germany. The day before leaving Mr. Krause purchased a quart of whisky, a part of which he had put into a pocket flask for use on his journey, leaving the rest in the bottle for medicinal use in the family in his absence. He was in the habit of giving the children a teaspoonful each morning as a tonic. Mr. Krause left on the 4 o'clock train, yesterday morning, leaving the whisky on the table within the reach of the little child. Between 9 and 10 o'clock an older brother discovered little Otto lying on the floor asleep, with the bottle of whisky in his arms, and failing to awake him, told his mother that his brother had been drinking whisky. The mother found him as described. She tried to bring the child back to consciousness. but failed, and at last called in the aid of physicians, but their efforts were unavailing. At 8 o'clock this morning the little boy died, of what the physicians term passive congestion of the brain, caused by whisky. The amount drunk by the child was fully half a pint. A telegram was sent to Mr. Krause at New York, in the hope of catching him before he embarked on the steamer.

An Insane Man's Career Ended. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

VINCENNES, June 30 .- This morning early William Sachs, once a prominent citizen of this city, was found dead in his cell at the jail. A post mortem examination revealed coagulated blood on the brain. He was incarcerated Sunday for a violent fit of insanity superinduced by trouble and drink. His troubles in life have brought him, at his death, no little public sympathy. In early life he was a Christian, and at one time prominent in business in this city, but on account of domestic embroilments his life was embittered and his journey began to the end he finally reached. During his fit of violent insanity on Sunday he entered the Christian Church, at the morning services, and proclaimed that he was Jesus Christ, and appointed the minister as his disciple. When lodged in a cell he removed every vestige of his clothing and remained in a nude state until he died. He was fortyseven years of age. His body was at once removed to the morgue and his friends telegraphed for. His daughter, Mrs. Lyda Sachs Wells, is in New York. Her child was all he seemed to care for. His last call was for this grandchild. The remains will be interred Thursday.

Identity of Mrs. Staats Established. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

ELKHART, June 30.—Through the efforts of Elijah Colburn, in charge of the machinery at the Lake Shore shops in this city, light has been thrown on the mystery concerning the death of the alleged Mrs. Staats, whose life came to an end a few days ago, caused by liquor. In 1870 Miss Nora Lewis, a beautiful young lady, twenty-four years of age, came to this city from South New Berlin, N. J., to live with the family of Mr. and Mrs. Colburn. Her character was above reproach. A few months after Miss Lewis arrived here Joseph Sage, also from South New Berlin, where he left a wife and one child, arrived here. A few months later he eloped with Miss Lewis. Nothing was heard of their whereabouts until Mr. Colburn saw the notice of the death of the alleged Mrs. Staats in the daily papers. He recognized the corpse as that of the once beautiful Miss Lewis. Staats admitted to Colburn that his real name was Sage, and that he had never been married to Miss Lewis. A few years ago Miss Lewis received a small fortune, which was left her by her father, but this has been thrown away in drink.

Another Aged Hoosier.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. MUNCIE, June 80,-Delaware county claims the honor of having among its citizens the oldest born Hoosier. He lives near De Soto; his name is Asai! Thornburg, and he is ninety-eight years old. He voted for John Quincy Adams for President, and has voted at every presidential election since. He was at Greenville when Gen. William Henry Harrison negotiated the treaty with the Indians, and was a delegate to the convention that nominated General Harrison for President; he also had the pleasure of voting for the grandson, Benjamin Harrison, for the same office. His history is a part of the history of Indiana. Mr. Thornburg's health is reasonably good and he promises well to round out a century. nived over seventy years with the wife of his youth, she having died about five years ago. A son, Joab Thornburg, lives in the same house with his father, who is well up in the seventies and was the first white child born in Delaware county.

Death of Dr. J. A. Ritter.

PAOLI, June 30 .- Dr. John A. Ritter, sr., of Orangeville, died Saturday, and was buried at Orleans yesterday. Deceased was in his seventy-third year, and was one of the best known and most prominent physicians and surgeons in southern Indiana. He served with distinction in the war, entering the service as captain of Company G. Forty-ninth Regiment, Indiana Volunteers, and was afterward promoted to the position of surgeon of that regiment. He was a prominent member of the Masonic. Odd-fellows and G. A. R. organizations, and at the time of his death was a member of the board of pension surgeons at this place. He was noted for his eminence in his profession, and for his sturdy honesty, as well as for his benevolence and charity. He leaves a widow and seven children surviving him. His funeral was the largest ever seen in this part of the State.

Death of a Prominent Lawyer.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. PLYMOUTH, June 30. - David McDuffe died in this city of pneumonia yesterday, aged about thirty-five years. He was born in Marshall county, and lived most of the time in this city. He was a rising young man in his profession, that of law, and was considered one of the best advocates of the Plymouth bar. In politics he was a Republican, and was a great friend of President Harrison. He was chairman of the Republican county central committee during the last two campaigns. Practical Joke Results in Death. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

CORYDON, June 30, -Isaac Montgomery, aged twenty-two years, died at New Amsterdam, this county, this morning. His death was the result of a foolish prank played on him a few nights ago. Some of his companions nailed him in a box and told him they were going to throw him into the river. When he was released it was found that he was badly hurt by baving a nail driven in one of his shoulders. Next morning he had lost his reason, and, before he died, became a raving maniac.

Buried in a Trench and Seriously Hurt.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. FRANKLIN, June 30 .- While workmen were engaged in laying the water mains along Jefferson street, to-day, the earth caved in the trench, catching two men. James Bachs and Walter Cox, and injuring them quite severely. It took about forty minutes to get them out. Bachs had three ribs broken, besides being dangerously hurt internally. Cox had his left leg broken, one hip dislocated and an injured spine. Both men are dangerously hurt.

Aeronauts Are Professors.

CHICAGO, June 30 .- Eugene Goddard and Pillas Pinas, the famous French aeronauts. came near being detained to-day as common laborers imported under contract, They came to this country under cotract to a Chicago company to operate a captive balloon similar to that operated in Paris, and when they went to the custom-house to-day for the purpose of securing the entry to their balloon free of duty as among the "tools" of their trade, Imigrant !nspector Lester took them in tow and questioned them as to their business. After looking up the law and the definitions according to Webster he came to the conclusion that aeronautics is an art, and that aeronats are professors, a class not subject to the provisions of the contract labor law. He will, however, report the case to the authorties at Washington. The balloon was admitted free on the claim made.

Butcher's Knife in His Breast,

NASHVILLE, June 30 .- A shocking tragedy was enacted in the quiet village of Germantown, Tenn., last night, where a negro boy. named Pugh Prewitt, was instantly killed. The kitling occurred in front of a negro church, and no one was found who could identify the murderer. Prewitt's body was found with a butcher knife nearly a foot long sticking in his breast. Coroner Stockland tried to pull it out, but could not, and it was not until a loop was made in a rope and a strong stick passed through it, with two men pulling at it, that the knife was finally extracted. The knife had passed through the breast bone and had been imbedded an inch deep in the vertebrae. There was no actual eye-witness to the killing. Suspicion attaches to a negro named Mose Johnson, with whom Pugh had a difficulty earlier in the day.

Result of Closing Behring Sea.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 30 .- Apart altogether from the inconvenience and loss which the British Columbia sealers will suffer consequent on the institution of the close of the season for seals this year it is said many of the Indians employed as hunters on sealing schooners, with their families, will be reduced to destitute circumstances. Coast fishing, which would otherwise keep them in winter supplies, will be over before the majority return from the sea, and there will be nothing for them to do. Already it is intimated that the government will be asked to maintain many of the Indians and their families the coming winter.

Tripoli Paint-Works.

FLORENCE, Ala., June 30.-The Florence tripoli-works commenced oparations today. It is the only works of the kind in the United States, and the proprietors are certain that they have a bonanza. The tripoli is found in-large quantities in Law-rence county, Tennessee. It is said to be the only deposit of tripoli on this side of the Atlantic. It makes an excellent paint for inside work and is unexcelled for polishing purposes.

E. C. ATKINS & CC LIS, MINN., CHATTANOOGA, TENN. FARMERS' ALLIANCE IN THE SOUTH.

Resists Progress. Edward J. Seymour, in New York Tribune. I happened to be one of the audience at Cooper Institute last night, where the first organized effort in this city was made to amalgamate the Farmers' Alliance and the trades-unions so as to form a third party. Senator Peffer, the long-whiskered exponent of third-party ideas, in addressing the assemblage, put special emphasis on the fact that the West and South were heart and soul engaged in the movement, and that it was only left to the workingmen of the East to complete an organization that would be national in its scope. Either Senator Peffer is knowingly misstating facts, or else he is wofully ignorant of the true state of affairs when he counts upon the assistance of the Alliance men of a single Southern State in support of a third party. I have lived in the South for the last sixteen years, am familiar with its political history, was an interested spectator at the Ocals convention, and have watched the course of the Alliance as a political faction. I had hoped that it might be the means of breaking down the barriers of that blind prejudice and sentimental bigotry to which all questions of practical politics have been made subservient in the Southern States. Recognizing the fact that the suppression of opinion on national issues is fatal to the security of Republican institutions, and realizing that the Republican party in the South is utterly powerless, I was in hopes that a new era of discussion might lead to an honest expression of opinion by the masses, who are now bound hand and foot by a despotism of political slavery which ingalls, indulging in an iridescent dream. The Southern Alliance men are divided on the questions that called their organization into existence. But they are unanimons on one question. They are determined to fight their battles within the lines of the Democratic party, and will give enthusiastic support to the Democratic national ticket without questioning the views of the candidates. The Southern Alliance men lack sincerity. They are ready enough to fight for local offices, and are willing to get their share of the loaves and fishes; but when it comes to the election of a United States Senator or Congressman, principle vanishes and sentiment influences their vote. With the balance of power in their hands, they allowed their sentimental feelings to overcome them and elected John B. Gordon to the United States Senate from Georgia. By means of legalized fraud in the late State election in Florida every member of the State Legislature was elected on the Democratic ticket, save one Republican Sen-ator, who held over. Of the one hundred members who constitute that body sixty were members of the Farmers' Alliance. They had a decided majority, and D. H. Mays, an intelligent farmer, was placed in nomination for the United States Senate. Senator Call, with a record of twelve years of masterly mability in the Senate, and the very antipodes of a farmers' candidate, was placed in the field by the Democratic clique which rules Florida with a rod of iron. The Alliance men might have easily defeated him, but, divided among themselves, they deserted their candidate and made their old-time masters laugh in their sleeves by re-electing Call. Republicans who, despairing of success for their own party, and in the hope of securing a measure of political freedom, cast their fortunes with the Alliance, soon became aware that they were playing second fiddle to the regular Bourbon organization. The Moses which was to lead them out of the wilderness of political intolerance stranded them in the desert. L. F. Livingston, the horny-handed leader of the Georgia Alliance men, whose experience in the political cabbage garden is about all the agricultural education he ever received, declares that the Alliance men of the South will stick to the Democratic party, but will aid their brethren of the West in their mistaken efforts to obliterate Republican majorities, for if this is accomplished the South will again be in the saddle. In the South Atlantic States not a single Republican daily newspaper exists. The last advocate of Republican principles, the Jacksonville (Fla.) Tribune, has given up the ghost. The few Alliance weeklies are only Democratic auxiliaries and will give their support to

up a third-party vote. It Is a Fiendish Outrage.

THE 77-CENT DOLLAR, Its Origin and Career-Coined for Use in Oriental Countries. Kansas City Star.

One of the annoyances of business men is the "trade dollar." A man will come in hurriedly, make a purchase and throw down a disc of silver that looks and rings like a dollar. After he is gone the merchant finds a "trade dollar" in his till, and it bas a tendency to make him irritable. The trade dollar was a commercial convenience when first coined, but it is now a commercial nuisance. In 1873 the trade dollar was issued for purposes of trade with China and other Asiatic countries. Before that time Americans had been buying Mexican dollars and shipping them to the Orientals in payment of merchandise. The trade dollar was never intended for circulation in this country, but for exportation abroad. For five years they were coined and largely used. The act authorizing their comage repealed the act authorizing the coinage of the standard dollar, thus making them for a time the only dollar coins issued by the United States. The merchants might as well have used silver bars for Eastern trade but it was thought that the stamp of the government certifying that 420 grains of silver 900 fine would give other counties greater confidence than to use simple bars of silver unstamped and uncertified. From 1873 to 1876 they were legal tender and fifteen millions of them were coined. From 1876 to 1878 all trade dollars coined were not legal tender, but it is the opinion of eminent lawyars that the fifteen millions already comed were legal tender, while those coined after 1876 were not. Their coinage was discontinued Feb. 22, 1878, up to which time there had been 35,959,360 coined. The exact value people get as much more than that for them as they can. Feb. 19, 1887, an act was passed by Congress authorizing the redemption of trade dollars for six months, dollar for dollar. At that time statisticians estimated that there were about seven millions in the country. As 7,689,036 were redeemed, it is probable that there are not many now in the United States, although they do not command a premium as rarities. Like all the other coins of value, the trade dollar has been counterfeited, most of the counterfeits being made of type metal and circulated in China, Japan and the East Indies. The inhabitants of the East have fearned to be wary and watchful when handling coins that come from the Occident. Most of the trade dollars that went to the Eastern countries were melted and recoined in the currency of the Orient. The trade dollar contains four grains more of silver than the standard dollar and has eight one-thousandths less of Wild Cat in a Public Park, Philadelphia Inquirer. "There are few people who would not smile at the idea of hunting for wild cats in St. James Park, London," observed a recently-arrived tourist from across the herring pond yesterday. "It is a fact, nevertheless," he continued. "A most magnificent specimen was captured within a stone's throw of the Queen's palace some two or three weeks ago. A report had been made by some boys that they had seen a wild beast in the park, and a hunt was organized. After some search, right in a clump of trees, a genuine wild cat was brought to bay. It was a female and had a litter of young kittens, which were disporting themselves among the branches like so many monkeys. The mother was captured with a net which was dexterously thrown over her as she prepared to spring upon the intruders of her domain, and was presented to the Zoo. It is supposed that the animal had originally escaped from some show and had fraternized with the stray domestic elines which have no regular home, but pick up a meal when and how they can. It had been noticed for some time that the wild fowl in the lakes had been diminishing and were becoming very shy, keeping to the islands and rarely venturing on the mainland, but no one suspected that a wild cat carried them off. How the beast was not discovered sooner has been puzzling park-keepers and visitors as well." BILIOUSNESS, constipation, torpid liverpiles, cured by Dr. Miles's Nerve and Liver Pills; 50 doses 25c. Samples free at druggists, by mail 25c. MILES MED. Co., Etk-
